ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 2.—President Roosevelt distributed diplomas to the graduates of the Naval Academy to day. He came over from Washington by special train, accompanied by Miss Roosevelt, Commander and Mrs. Cowles, Secretary Cortelyou, Representative Foss, of Illinois, Chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs; Representative Burton, of Ohio; Lieut.-Commander Von Rebeur Paschwitz, of the German Embassy; Lieut.-Commander De Faramond de Lafajole, the naval attache of the French Embassy, and Dr. John F. Urie, the President's physician.

dent's physician.

President Roosevelt said in part:

"In receiving these diplomas you become men who, above almost any others of the entire Union, are to carry henceforth the ever-present sense of responsibility which must come with the knowledge that on some tremendous day it may depend upon your courage, your preparedness, your keen intelligence and knowledge of your profession whether or not the nation is again to write her name on the world's roll of homor or to know the black shame of defeat. We all of us earnestly hope that the occasion for war may never come, but if it has to come, then this nation must win; and the prime factor in securing victory over any foreign foe must of necessity be the United States Navy. If the navy falls us then we are doomed to defeat, no matter what may be our material wealth or the high average of our citizenship.

"Seamanship and marksmanship must be the two prime objects of your training, both for yourselves and for the men under you."

Long, of Wyoming, a member of the graduating class, was lying ill. Sitting up in bed the sick boy received his diploma from the President. The President then saw the Plebes throw the graduating class out of quarters and was greatly amused.
